

Divisibility means that one number can be divided evenly by another number without getting a remainder. Every even number is divisible by 2.