

Hint

Multiplication is the most efficient method for solving this problem, but there are several ways to find the total amount. How could you find the answer without pencil, paper, or a calculator? How might you decompose the numbers so you have smaller, more manageable numbers with which to work? Is there a simple, straightforward way to find the answer?