Hint

- An additive relationships demonstrates the equation $y = x + a$. This means that for every x, you get a as well. For example, if a store gives you one free bag of chips for each purchase of a package of hot dogs, this is an additive relationship.